The Glare Must Be Kept from the River, an the Lighthouse Board Kindly Suggests a Way to Do It-No Formal Notice Yet Received by the Bridge Trustees and No

United States District-Attorney Walker has been ordered by Acting Attorney-General Maury to proceed against the Brooklyn Bridge Trustees to compel them to comply with the law relative to the lighting of bridges over navigable rivers, and the question " Must the bridge lights go ?" is pressing itself upon the attention of the trustees and the interested public for answer.

Supt. C. C. Martin said to-day : "We shall not enter into any contest with the Lighthouse Board. They unquestionably have authority to regulate the lights on the main span of the bridge, from shore to shore. That span of the bridge, from shore to shore. That is to say, practically between the main piers.

"There are several ways suggested for a compliance with the law. Colored globes would undoubtedly remedy the difficulty, or ground glass opsque globes, or perceasin globes. But either of these remedies would reduce the light on the bridge fully one half, and we feel that there is none too much light now for the safety of foot passengers and those in vehicles on the bridge, and for public morality. The Lighthouse Board has submitted a plan of its own, which will probably be adopted, though it is an elaborate one.

will probably be adopted, though it is an elaborate one.

'The complaint is that the lights ahed a glaring light on the river, except directly under the bridge, where the effect is worse than ordinary darkness in contrast.

'They propose a system of screens and reflectors, so arranged on the river side of both rows of lights that no light will reach the water, while it will be all concentrated on the promenade and readways.

'It must be remembered that the carbons burn, and as they burn the upper one drops down to meet the other. By this process the centre of the light drops six inches every five hours, which is the length of the life of a pair of carbons. Each globe has two carbons, and when the first has burned down its six inches, it works a spring which sets the other going.

Now the reflectors must be so made that

"There are strteen lights on the main span between the piers, and only half of these could be seen in either direction, up or down the river.

"Nothing will be done by us, probably, until the next meeting of the trustees, Oct. 8. We have as yet received no official notice of the action of the Attorney-General, and I can not say what the red and green light regulation is; but whatever it is we shall comply with it. The whole is a perplexing question and, we think, one which has been raised unnaccessfuly."

When President Simmons called the meeting

Six reports were laid over for considera-of them were settled in a quarter of an hour,

This long question was that of transferring

$9,200 of the surplus of last year to the Board of Estimate and Appointment, for establishing the Free Lectures for workingmen which THE EVENING WORLD suggested some months sgo.

After President Simmons had put this matter before the Board, there was a considerable discussion of points connected with the employment of lecturers, the means of illustrating the discourses and the times at which lectures should occur.

Commissioner Wood spoke strongly of the precessity of illustrating the lectures by means Commissioner Wood spoke strongly of the necessity of illustrating the lectures by means of stereopticons and chemical expériments.

Commissioner O'Brien said: "I have got a list of professors desirous of giving the lectures who rank as high as any in the world. The lectures will be illustrated. Some of these lecturers have volunteered their services, others have presented theirs for a compensation. When an appropriation is asked from the surgius for as worthy an asked from the surgius for as worthy as vices, others have presented theirs for a compensation. When an appropriation is asked from the surplus for as worthy an object as this, I should not think there could be any question of the propriety of such an appropriation. We intend to select such schools in the wards as will be filled by a good audience, who will profit by this educational pleasure."

Other Commissioners expressed various views and made pertinent suggestions, and the favorable opinion of Corporation Counsel Beekman on the matter of the proposed transfer was several times referred to.

When the question was finally put upon its passage it was carried by a vote in which Commissioner Cole appeared as the only negative factor.

Commissioner Cole appeared as the only negative factor.
Commissioner Seligman was appointed by President Simmons to convey to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the notice of the action taken by the Board of Education.
A resolution by Commissioner Seligman to formulate a plan to be handed to the Board of Education on which to base the lectures, was opposed by Commissioner Guggenheimer on the ground that in June the committee, consisting of Guggenheimer. O'Brien and Dodge, had already been given that absolute power and that the resolution was not in order from the fact that the old resolution order from the fact that the old resolution was never rescinded or reconsidered.

The names of applicants as lecturers considered by the committee will be given in The Evening World to-morrow.

England's Greatest Duke and Baltimore's Beautiful and Wealthy Belle Engaged. ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 .- The announcement of Miss Virginia McTavish's engagement to the Duke of Norfolk has thrown Baltimore ociety into a flutter of excitement. Cablegrams received here to-day verify the reports irculated vesterday.

Miss Virginia McTavish is tall, stately and blonde. She is a leading society belle in Saltimore and New York, but is not popular because of her excessive hauteur. She is a laughter of Charles Carroll McTavish, a lineal descendant of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, and her mother was a Miss Scott, a daughter of Gen. Winfield Scott. She is considered the finest horsewoman in America, and on her imported Irish nunter frequently rides ahead of all the nale members of the Elkridge, Rocksway and Cedarhurst hunts. Two of her sisters have retired to convents. The elder, Miss Emily, took the visitation veil at Mount Emily, took the visitation veil at Mount Desailles and gave her fortune to the Church. The younger one became a Carmelite nun. She is just the one of sill the rich and pretty women of Baltimore who would appreciate and do justice to the position and title of Duchess of Norfolk.

An aunt of Miss McTavish married the first and last Marquis of Wellesley, for some time Governor-General of India. He was the elder brother of the great Duke of Wellington.

None of the family in Maryland. Virginia or New York had the faintest idea of the matrimonial intentions of their cousin nor of the distinguished connection that awaited them. Indeed, it was reported not long ago by those who pretend to keep as courant with the movements and plans of the British nobility that a marriage had been arranged between the Duke of Norfolk and a young Englishwoman of rank.

cver this State, and, indeed, the panic has spread to almost every city in the South.

Every day we receive notice that some new town has quarantined against us, and many localities have placed an embargo against all Floridians.

Arrangements have been completed though so that we can get out of town by water, and those whic desire can get away to points which have not quarantined against us.

These points are pretty well north, and, of course, are safer for refuge for our people. Direct communication will be had with New York.

A volunteer guard of 200 men is posted all around Ocala, where the people are in a panic over the appearance of the fever in Gainsville, though the disease has not spread beyond the four guardsmen who contracted it at Fernandins.

The Duke is a widower. He married in 1877 Lady Flora Hastings, daughter of the Countess of Loudoun and niece of the unfortunate Marquis of Hastings, who died banktrupt and broken-hearted in 1868, the last of his race. In this connection it is interesting to add that Lady Loudoun inherited the only one of her brother's (Lord Hastings) Itwelve earldoms which could be inherited by a woman, and thus became a peeress in her own right. She died some few years after her daughter became a duchess, and in her will left directions that her body was to be buried in the family vault, but that her right hand was to be detached from her body and buried in a certain favorite spot on one of her Scotch estates.

Prior to Lady Flora Hastings's marriage to the Duke of Norfolk she became a convert to Romanism, and was apparently as devoted to Rome as her husband. A son was given them in 1879, the present Earl of Arundel and Surrey, but to the great grief of his parents he was born blind and deaf and has since developed signs of imbecility. He is not likely to attain manhood, so that the second marriage of his father will, perhaps, provide the heir to the titles and estates. Flora, Duchess of Norfolk, died two or three years ago.

The Duke of Norfolk is rich even for an English Duke. He has a splendid mansion in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and one of the most in the heart of London and the heart English Duke. He has a splendid mansion in the heart of London and one of the most beautiful domains in Sussex as his principal country seat. Arundel Castle dates from the days of King Alfred, and a fireplace is shown in one of the old towers where the Saxon monarch is supposed to have warmed his limbs. The successive Dukes have of course restored the eastle from time to time, and the present palace wing, built by the thirteenth Duke, is a beautiful and picturesque structure. In the grounds is a long walled inclosure called the Duchesa's Kuchen Garden, where the present Duke's grandmother indulged in her bobby of cultivating vegetables. Near to the great gates of the grounds is a magnificent Gothic cathedral, built a dozen years ago entirely at the Duke's expense and presented to the Catholic Church, and beneath the grand alter lie the ashes of his young widow.

As for the Duke personally, it may be said that he is a man of pre-eminent virtue and a most worthy exponent of the motto "No. blesse oblige." He is a patron of arts and letters, a breeder of fine stock, a promoter of agriculture, a generous landlord and liberal in every way with his wealth. In appearance he is somewhat short in stature, with a full beard and unpronounced features. His one little peculiarity is his partiality to shabby tall hats.

Coroner Edman was notified this morning of the sudden death of John O'Neal, thirty-five years old, in the barroom, 18 West street. The body was removed to a neighboring undertaker's.

Charles Brown, of 27 Van Bruns street, Brooktyn, while coupling oars on the Nithh Avenue Elivated Haliroad at South Ferry this morning was caught between two cars and and his hip fractured. He was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital.

I have tried myself to procure a situation, but have always been surprised to see the number of applicants on the same mission. What are the causes why so many people are out of work? And what can be done to get employment for those who want work? I believe that three-fourths of those idle would be willing to put their hands to any kind of work by which they could earn a living.
